

The Last Four Mares

The vision of the Anishinaabe man, who was injured one day and was sitting on the river bank with his head in his hands. He felt he was being watched. Lifting his head he saw the four most beautiful horses he has ever seen in his life, with a white Aurora around them. It was the last four spirit horse mares left in the world. When he stood up they disappeared and were gone. He looked for them but there was no trace. Later when the man flew back home he told his fathers about his vision and they planned the rescue of the last four Spirit Horse mares.
